

Mobile Vibration Script

In this guide I will be showing you how to implement a mobile vibration script into your mobile landing page.

You can use this script to capture your visitor's attention.

Vibration Basics

A basic vibration can be set by passing a number of milliseconds to navigator.vibrate:

```
1 // vibrate for one second
2 navigator.vibrate(1000);
```

Alternatively, you can pass an array with vibration and delay parameters specified in milliseconds. For example, to vibrate for 500ms, wait for 300ms, then vibrate again for 100ms:

```
1 // vibrate for one second
2 navigator.vibrate([500, 300, 100]);
```

The even-numbered array items define a vibration time (arrays are zero-based so the first and third items are 0 and 2). Odd-numbered array items define the delay time.

Adding The Vibration Script To Your Mobile Landing Page

To add a mobile vibration script to your mobile landing page copy the code below and past it before the </head> on your mobile landing page.

```
1 <script type="text/javascript">
2 navigator.vibrate = navigator.vibrate ||
3 navigator.webkitVibrate ||
4 navigator.mozVibrate ||
5 navigator.msVibrate;
6
7 navigator.vibrate([1000, 500, 1000, 500, 1000, 500, 1000, 500, 1000, 500, 1000, 500, 1000, 500]);
8 </script>
```
